Last year, Student Health Services health promotion staff made more than 80 presentations to over 3,400 students on topics like hepatitis, stress management, safer sex, and healthy relationships.

Four out of five students at SCSU are ages 18-25 and entered right after high school. One in three students attends part-time.

SCSU is one of the few universities in the Upper Midwest to offer programs in fields such as aviation, meteorology, and geographic information systems.

Physics, Astronomy & Engineering Sciences won nearly a million dollars in research grants from 1998 to 2002, including many extremely competitive grants from the National Science Foundation and NASA.
