MINNESOTA TEACHER LICENSURE TESTING INFORMATION

Go to the MTLE Website. (<http://www.mtle.nesinc.com/>).

Which tests are required in Minnesota?

Beginning September 1, 2010, Minnesota's testing program terminated use of the Praxis series by adopting a new series of tests, and is now called the "Minnesota Teacher Licensure Examinations" (MTLE) system. As of September 1, 2010, only MTLE tests can be taken for Minnesota licensure.

- Passing scores from Praxis I tests taken prior to September 1, 2010 will, however, be accepted if they met Minnesota's former passing score requirements

Mathematics – 171; Reading – 173; Writing – 172

- Praxis II scores are no longer accepted to meet content and pedagogy testing requirements
- For specific information for individuals who completed an approved Minnesota licensure program, see "Minnesota Graduates" on page 3
- For specific information for individuals who completed a licensure program other than a Minnesota-based program, see "Applicants prepared outside Minnesota" on page 4

Who must take the tests?

An applicant for a first-time Minnesota classroom teaching license must pass:

- Basic skills, which consists of three subtests: Reading, Writing, Mathematics
- Test of general pedagogy, which consists of two subtests
- Test of content knowledge for the specific licensure field, which consists of two subtests with the exception of Elementary content knowledge, which consists of three subtests
- See page 10 of this document for information for applicants who are deaf

An applicant adding a licensure field to an existing Minnesota classroom teaching license must pass a test of content knowledge for the new licensure field, which consists of two subtests with the exception of Elementary content knowledge, which consists of three subtests

The following licensure fields are not subject to teacher testing requirements:

School Administrators, School Counselors, School Social Workers, School Nurses, School Psychologists, Educational Speech-Language Pathologists

What are options for an exemption or substitution for the Basic Skills tests or if one or more of the Basic Skills tests are not yet passed?

1. Nonnative English speakers may be exempt from taking the MTLE Basic Skills test required for licensure in Minnesota if they have a job offer from a Minnesota school district/charter school, or are a graduate of a Minnesota college or university and they obtain verification they meet the criteria of being a nonnative English speaker. Generally, a “nonnative” speaker is defined as an individual whose first language is not English.
2. Though not yet in effect, the ACT Plus Writing test or SAT test may be substituted once the Board of Teaching determines passing scores. It is anticipated this will be done by January 1, 2015 or sooner. You may choose to monitor the MDE website for effective dates and score information.
3. Passing scores from Praxis I tests taken prior to September 1, 2010, will be accepted if they met Minnesota’s former passing score requirements
4. A temporary suspension for school year 2014-2015 has been authorized by the Legislature. The suspension allows a one-year license to be issued without having to attempt or pass the test in order to obtain the first license. A teacher is encouraged, however, to take and attempt to pass the test(s) in order to obtain the full five-year teaching license. The Basic Skills test(s) may be replaced in the future by new requirements. All other renewal conditions must be met for renewal, including attempting to pass MTLE Content and Pedagogy tests.
 - a. For a teacher who has already been issued a one-year temporary license in Minnesota, an additional one-year license may be granted for the 2014-2015 school year even if the MTLE Basic Skills tests have not all been passed but all other licensing requirements and renewal conditions have been met.
 - b. For a teacher applying for a first license in Minnesota who has completed a Minnesota licensure program a one-year license may be granted for the 2014-2015 school year if the MTLE Basic Skills tests have been attempted but not passed.
 - c. For a teacher applying for a first license in Minnesota who completed an out-of-state licensure program, a one-year license may be granted for the 2014-2015 school year to allow time to attempt and pass the MTLE Basic Skills tests.

What if one or more of the Content or Pedagogy tests are not yet passed?

- For a teacher who has already been issued a one-year license in Minnesota, an additional one-year license may be granted if the renewal conditions printed on the prior one-year license permit a renewal and all renewal conditions have been met.
- For a teacher applying for a first license in Minnesota who has completed a Minnesota licensure program a one-year license may be granted if the content or pedagogy tests have been attempted but not passed.
- For a teacher applying for a first license in Minnesota coming from an out-of-state licensure program, a one-year license may be granted to allow time to pass these tests.

How should the MTLE score reports be submitted?

- Official Praxis score reports for tests taken and passed prior to September 1, 2010, should be sent to Educator Licensing.
- Official MTLE score reports do not need to be sent; Educator Licensing staff have secure, read-only access to the scores and will check the system as soon as scores are reported. Applicants will be notified if additional information is needed.

Minnesota graduates

Score reports for applicants who have completed a Minnesota-approved teacher licensure program are not needed and should not be sent unless requested by Educator Licensing.

- For individuals who completed an approved Minnesota licensure program before September 1, 2010, Praxis I (basic skills) scores are still accepted; Praxis II scores are no longer accepted.
- For individuals who completed an approved Minnesota licensure program between September 1, 2010 and August 31, 2012, passing Praxis I (basic skills) are still accepted* and Praxis II scores will be accepted until December 31, 2015.
- For individuals who completed an approved Minnesota licensure program after September 1, 2012, Praxis I scores are still accepted.*

Applicants prepared outside Minnesota

Beginning September 1, 2010, all teachers must take the MTLE tests. This includes the basic skills tests in Reading, Writing, and Mathematics, a pedagogy test consisting of two subtests, and the content knowledge subtests specific to the licensure field. However, if a licensed teacher from another state has a Minnesota passing score on the Praxis I (basic skills) tests taken prior to September 1, 2010, the score will be accepted. Praxis II (content or pedagogy) test scores are no longer accepted. See page 1 for required passing scores on the Praxis I basic skills test.

Information for applicants who are deaf

From: Minnesota Administrative Rule 8710.0500 EXAMINATIONS FOR TEACHER LICENSES

Subpart 1. Examination requirements.

A. An applicant for a first professional teaching license shall provide official evidence of having successfully completed examinations of skills in reading, writing, and mathematics before being issued an initial Minnesota professional teaching license. The examinations must have been adopted by the Board of Teaching.

An applicant who is deaf must fulfill the mathematics requirement of this part by successfully completing the mathematics examination, and must fulfill the reading and writing requirements of this part either by successfully completing the reading and writing examinations or by evaluation by board approved colleges and universities of demonstrated proficiency (Intermediate Plus) in the expressive and receptive use of alternative communication systems including sign language and finger spelling as measured by the Sign Communication Proficiency Inventory (SCPI) *. This inventory is published by the National Technical Institute for the Deaf in Rochester, New York, and is administered through the College of Education at the University of Minnesota on at least an annual basis. A description of this inventory is available through the Minitex interlibrary loan system in the Journal of Sign Language Studies and American Annals for the Deaf. The inventory is incorporated by reference. It may be periodically changed.

The SCPI is now the Sign Language Proficiency Inventory (SLPI).

If you would like to request that the reading and writing examinations be waived, please submit evidence of deafness (a copy of one's audiogram) and a copy of the SLPI at the Intermediate Plus or higher (if the SLPI is not already in your licensure file). These documents should be submitted as soon as possible to Educator Licensing for review. Please include your File Folder Number with all correspondence.
