

News Release

www.stcloudstate.edu/ucomm

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
Oct. 29, 2012

CONTACT:
Adam Hammer
University Communications
aehammer@stcloudstate.edu
320-308-2104

SCSU Survey announces presidential election results

ST. CLOUD, Minn. – The SCSU Survey at St. Cloud State University has completed its annual fall statewide survey and is analyzing results for release.

The third released findings relate to the U.S. Senate race. The survey found that Sen. Amy Klobuchar has a large and probably insurmountable lead over Republican challenger Kurt Bills. The lead is 27 percent among the smaller number of likely voters and 34 percent among all Minnesotans. This is consistent with various other state polls.

Full results that focus on the upcoming elections and other issues facing the state, will be released over the next few days and posted on the survey website next week at www.stcloudstate.edu/scsusurvey.

The 600 randomly chosen adult Minnesotans were interviewed Oct. 15-21 via live interviewers and random phone bank digit dialing to reach landlines and cell phones. Interviews were conducted by 40 trained St. Cloud State students who were supervised by faculty and student directors. Participants shared their views on a variety of pertinent topics ranging from amendment issues to the presidential election, congressional elections and political makeup of the state.

See provided methodology and presidential election findings for more details.

-AEH-

For more information, contact Stephen Frank, professor in the Department of Political Science and co-director of the SCSU Survey, at sfrank@stcloudstate.edu or 320-493-0311. If unavailable, contact Steven Wagner, professor in the Department of Political Science and co-director of the SCSU Survey, at swagner@stcloudstate.edu.